Provocative Ideas for Generating New Energy in Organizations

Business Innovator Judith Anderson will offer her thoughts on “taking the high road to the bottom line.” Judith is an engaging and thought-provoking innovator who offers a fresh approach to increasing workplace productivity. Participants take away effective new leadership and business relationship skills, which they can practice immediately in their work environments. These imaginative and effective skills increase workplace creativity and enthusiasm and enable individuals and teams to set and reach aggressive goals gracefully and easily.

With an MS in economics and an MA in spiritual psychology, Ms. Anderson has learned that when these new skills are practiced in the workplace, productivity and peace abound.
